Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Pt; Bishan Narain Dar s, Vol. 1: Speeches and Writings The Editor of the Canning College Magazine wrote in the issue for December 1916 as follows: - [On the eve of publication of this number comes the sad news of the death of one, perhaps the greatest, of our sons, Pandit Bishan Narain Dar. An account of his life and work will be found elsewhere. Probably few Indians had read so widely in the world s literature as he; and, though compelled by bodily infirmity to live upon the fringe of the busy working world, perhaps on this very account, few were capable of examining a point of controversy more acutely, few of pronouncing a saner judgment. The death of a man is not entirely matter for tears, for he bequeaths to posterity the example of his virtue - no inconsiderable portion of a good man s life. So will Pandit Bishan Narain live on in the hearts of those who loved and revered him] A strong and pure light is gone out, the radiance of a clear vision and a beneficent purpose. So wrote John Morley on the death of John Stuart Mill. A similar feeling overpowers our minds when we think of the tragic end of Bishun Narain Dar, in whose death a strong and pure light of thought and culture has suddenly disappeared from the intellectual horizon. In the fulness and freshness of grief which is too sacred to attract public notice, it is not possible for me to give a complete survey of the useful and brilliant career which has closed so abruptly, But in obedience to the wishes of the...
